

PRINCIPAL

St Paul's Anglican Grammar School is a thriving co-educational school located in Gippsland, Victoria. Since its commencement in 1982, the School has grown to be a leading independent school of 1400 students from ELC to Year 12 on two main campuses in Warragul and Traralgon, and a separate Year 9 campus in Warragul. Easy accessibility to Melbourne, the mountains and beach, and the quality of life in attractive rural surroundings, will see continuing growth in the region.

After seven years of exemplary service, which has seen the School grow markedly in esteem, the Principal, Lisa Moloney, has been appointed to become Principal at MLC School, Sydney, and as a result the Board of St Paul's now seeks its next Principal. The successful applicant will be an experienced educational leader with strong Christian values who has worked within a high performing school culture.

The School is recognised for its strong academic performance. Offering an elite sports performers program, the School is also recognised for excellence in the visual and performing arts. Health and wellbeing initiatives underpin the holistic growth of students and staff. Environmental sustainability guides school development, and students make significant contributions to community both at home and abroad. The School's regional setting invites close connections with community.

The next Principal will be a visionary leader of innovative learning practice, an inspiring motivator and a passionate advocate for the School. The appointee's authentic and compassionate personality will draw people from different constituencies together in support of the School's vision to offer an exemplary Anglican education to the young people of our region who bring a refreshing openness and energy to the School.

Details of the appointment process, contacts for further information, and an avenue for a confidential independent conversation about the opportunity, are available at stpaulsags.vic.edu.au
